

Archives Have The Answers! You Provide the Questions

Texas Archives Month • October 2016

Archives, libraries, and special collections across Texas work not only to preserve historical records but also to make them accessible. Whether available onsite in research rooms or online, records unlock the stories of the past to help researchers discover who they are, what their ancestors did, how their communities have changed, and how Texas became Texas. For more information, visit www.thrab.org.

Sponsored by Texas Historical Records Advisory Board and Texas State Library and Archives Commission. Funding provided by National Historical Publications and Records Commission.

